INTRODUCTION

This collection consists of items related to the Frierson and Warfield families of Maury County, Tennessee. These two families are related through the marriage of Horace Frierson, Jr. and Julia Warfield. Persons of interest in this collection include Calvin Frierson, Emma Frierson, Gardiner Frierson, Horace Frierson, Horace Frierson, Jr., Jennie Frierson, William J. Frierson, Washington Meredith, A.W. Warfield, Mrs. Cornelia (C.A.) Warfield, Francis B. Warfield, John F. Warfield, Julia Warfield, Norma Warfield, and Seth W. Warfield.

The collection is arranged in alphabetical order by type of material. Original order was not able to be determined due to prior work on this collection.

There are no restrictions on the use of the materials in the Frierson-Warfield Papers.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The Frierson-Warfield Papers consist of items related to the Frierson and Warfield families of Maury County, Tennessee. The collection contains many different types of materials including account books, accounts, bills and receipts, cards, correspondence, diaries, land records, legal documents, military records, newspaper clippings, notebooks, notices, photographs, and school reports. The collection spans the years 1813 - 1928, though the bulk is concentrated in the period 1859 - 1925.

This collection gives an interesting insight into the lives of the Frierson and Warfield families and into the daily activities of families in the Maury County area. Of particular interest are the military related records of Major A.W. Warfield during the Civil War, and Major Horace Frierson during World War I, including diaries kept by both men during their military service. These diaries give very good insight into the experiences both of these men faced, as well as insight into their own thoughts on their military service. Additionally, there is a notebook on the Army 105th Engineers kept by Captain Francis B. Warfield between September and October, 1918, as well as a photograph album and individual photographs taken during World War I.

The bulk of the material in this collection is concentrated on Seth W. Warfield and Cornelia A. Warfield. Additionally, there is a significant amount of material concentrated on Emma Frierson and Washington Meredith.

Of particular interest are the account books of Seth W. Warfield, which document the various business interests he was involved in, including his farm operations in Maury County and the rental house he owned in Nashville, Davidson County, Tennessee.

The photographs in Box 6 and 7 come from Horace Frierson, Jr. and Francis B. Warfield. Major Horace Frierson, Jr. was the commanding officer of the 2nd Battalion (Batteries D, E, and F), 114th Field Artillery Regiment, 55th Field Artillery Brigade, 30th Infantry Division. The 55th Artillery Brigade was detached from the division upon its arrival in France and later took part in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. Other prominent Tennesseans who served with the 114th were: Gordon Browning, Fred Estes, and Luke Lea. Browning, later governor of Tennessee, was a Lieutenant in Battery D and was promoted to Captain and given command of Battery A. Estes, who would be the director of the Tennessee State Museum for fourteen years, served in Battery E and was gassed on October 15, 1918. Lea, the 114th's commanding officer, served as a U. S. Senator and was a powerful figure in Tennessee politics, often referred to as the "maker of governors." See History of the 114th Field Artillery for photographs of Browning, Estes, Frierson, and Lea. Francis B. "Dolly" Warfield arrived in France as a 1st Lieutenant in Company E, 2nd Battalion, 105th Engineers Regiment, 30th Infantry Division and ended the war as the Captain of the Headquarters Company, 105th Engineers Regiment, 30th Infantry Division. The 105th Engineers, along with the rest of the 30th Infantry Division, took part in the fighting around Ypres, Belgium.

Folders 2 and 3 in Box 6 contain copies of official U. S. Army Signal Corps photographs. These copies were presumably ordered by Francis B. Warfield since they represent the area of the front where his unit was stationed. Each photograph has an identification number assigned to it by the Signal Corps [abbreviated SC#] and descriptions of the photographs can be found in Catalogue of Official A. E. F. Photographs Taken by the Signal Corps, U. S. A. Folder 4 contains a scanned copy of Francis B. Warfield's album of World War I photographs [the album itself is housed in Box 7]. Those photographs which have been scanned and entered into the photograph database are noted with "[S]."

In consultation with the TSLA Preservation Services Conservation Lab, it was decided to maintain the photograph scrapbook located in Box 7, Photographs - World War I - Warfield, Francis B. - Album, in the format originally found, except for interleaving with acid-free papers and being placed in a specially made acid-free box.

Amos Warfield (1866-1915). Married Cornelia (1839-1912).
Farmer/businessman

Francis B. "Dolly" Warfield, ( ? -1975)

Native of Columbia, Tennessee, was the son of Seth Washington and Chloe Boddie Warfield. He graduated from Columbia Military Academy, which his father helped to establish, and then enrolled in Vanderbilt University's School of Engineering. He graduated from Vanderbilt in 1915. Upon his graduation, he began to work for the G. B. Howard Construction Company, until the time of his voluntary enlistment in the U. S. Army in 1917. He served in France and eventually attained the rank of Captain in the 105th Engineers Corps. Warfield returned to the States in 1919 and by 1920 was once again employed by the G. B. Howard Construction Company.

During the 1920's, Warfield became associated with Nashville architect Donald Wright Southgate. In 1929, he became associated with architect Edwin A. Keeble to form the firm of Warfield and Keeble. This partnership lasted until 1944, when Keeble was commissioned a Lieutenant in the U. S. Navy. Warfield formed the practice of Warfield & Associates, in which he remained until his retirement.

During his career as an architect and engineer, Warfield was involved with several projects, among them Westminster Presbyterian Church and McTyeire Hall at Vanderbilt (with Keeble), First Presbyterian Church, Bartholomew Episcopal Church, Rand Hall at Vanderbilt, Two Rivers High School, Cheatham Place, the Coca-Cola Bottling Works in Columbia, Tennessee, and the Springfield Woolen Mills.

He died on August 6, 1975.
